Introduction

As I have had some interest shown in trolleybus fleet lists I have tried to put together all info I could find which was not a lot and put this in the two European Tram Datafiles. However I have now received a great deal of information from Ian Ring (which I thank him for) and now I have put all this info into a data-file of its own. Trolleybuses have been around for a long time, in fact they were designed to use the over-head wires which were used by trams when these were taken out of service, in the UK, but on mainland Europe many were seen as a cheap and useful form of public transport.

Unfortunately this is not a complete list as information is very difficult to obtain so if anyone has any extra data please let me know at the address below. The main countries are in the former Soviet Union which I find difficult to get info on including trams and locomotives.

Thanks go to Ian Ring for the data.

If you would like more information please see Trolleybus Magazine.
